Wanting safe spaces for myself and my daughter when we are actually biologically female is not harassment. Not protect protecting women and biological females however is.

Jo Bentley

“Biological reality is crucial to retain women’s rights and healthcare and provide dignity and privacy to females. Sex based language matters.”

Julie Tipping

“The proposal to ban and/or remove sex-based speech will be deeply harmful to women & children it prevents honest & open discussion of proposed changes to the law and prevents people informing others of the impact of policy and legal changes. It is not hate to discuss truth, even where that may be uncomfortable or even offensive to some, in fact, a democracy requires it.

Where speech crosses over to actively encourage physical violence, or where the speech simply uses derogatory terms, this should be removed. For example, the terms ‘cis’ ‘tranny’ ‘terf’ ‘pig in a wig’ should not be allowed & should be removed. However it is essential that reality & truth be allowed. Stating that a man is a man/male is not violence or name-calling, it is a truthful statement of fact, and it is not hateful to state the biological truth of a person or situation so for example, it should not be considered hate when fact is stated such as ‘a man/male who identifies as a woman was allowed into the women’s category in boxing/a male who identifies as a woman has been transferred to a women’s prison despite being sentenced for rape’. These issues have profound consequences for women & it is essential we are allowed to inform the public & have open discussion about these for the benefit of all groups.

So-called ‘misgendering’ in truth means nothing more than stating reality & to ban this would also have a completely negative impact on the credibility of the platforms concerned. We HAVE to protect the ability to speak freely & truthfully, even where this may offend some people or else there IS no free speech at all.”

Virginia Cleaves

“Women’s rights to safety, dignity and fairness are being eroded in society in general and meta would be reinforcing that loss by the suggested policy changes.

There is a safeguarding issue by removing the right to have a truthful discussion. How can children be protected if reality cannot be discussed.”

Alison Wren

Oh Meta. I have taught and lectured in life sciences all my life, as well as working in HIV/AIDS education in the death years. There is nothing more important than being able to accurately describe physical reality, and whilst there are people who refuse to acknowledge this, it is more important for everyone's mental wellbeing that we are able to speak the truth.

Irene Bonaccorsi

"Preserve free speech !!! A woman."

Joyce Hearn

"Limiting free speech is something Communists do. This is America. I am a woman 81 yrs old. Holding us hostage from our privacy. Men boys coming into where I shower is humiliating to me. Going to the toilet is private and men should be separated from women. We should not be subject to rape and humiliation from men.

They need to be separate. Some men have no control over their sex drive and if they still have a penis definitely should not be in women's locker room or bathrooms. You say to make every one feel safe you won't allow us to speak our fear of men. But you decide I can't say I'm afraid of men. I don't want men where they can see my body. Don't women count at all with you?"

Rose Black

"Sex based rights protect women who are far more vulnerable than any male who 'thinks' they are a woman. We have had protection of our rights taken away- to the point that you are now threatening women to stay silent and be ok with having the word woman completely taken from us

There is a fair way to protect the rights of women and transwomen. They need their own terms..... 'trans woman' and we keep ours 'women' META is only confusing the matter more and taking away rights and safety of women to defend actual biological men.

Bathrooms is a very very important issue given that this is a place where women feel vulnerable. Imagine having to share our spaces with bigger, stronger males who have no place being there. Then when we try to raise our concerns- it's the women who are silenced. Beyond disgraceful and taking women's rights backwards"

Sue Rhone

Women's voices are being silenced around the world. Discussing biological reality & the impact of self ID gender laws is not "hate speech" but classifying it as such is another huge step in silencing women & encouraging potentially harmful propaganda without allowing any dissenting voices or even just discussion on those topics.

Cindy LaMantia

Sex-based speech is not harassment.

Mo Ludlam

“People should be able to say what they see. If they see a man they should be allowed to say that they have seen a man.

Social media platforms should support the reality. Sex is binary. People who identify as the opposite sex should be protected from abuse. Saying the reality though is not abuse”

Jenny Klein

Sex based speech is not harassment. Meta has already admitted shutting down free speech, don't continue this dangerous trend. Start protecting women and their spaces. Why doesn't a women's voice matter to you if they are uncomfortable with men in their spaces? Meta needs to stop their censorship of differing ideas.

T Cook

“The rights of trans identifying people should not supersede the rights of any other people.

Female only sports spaces should be protected as such.

The erasure of womanhood must stop” giving women a voice to protect us from losing our rights is not hate speech. Please do not take our voice away!

Susan SteMarie

Michelle Simmons

Why is ok to bully females. If I say females deserve a space free from males to undress is it not bullying and harassment to say a female must be ok with being undressed in front of males? When did it become ok to sexually harass females? If you can say that it is ok to harass females but not trans women aren't you contributing the misogyny that females experience every day. Sex based rights matter and you do not get to tell us we have to be quite about losing our sex based rights.

Susan Rodgers

“I am respectful of others. However, I will never agree that men are women just because they 'feel' like it. And I'm unwilling to submit to their requests that I have the same feelings any more than I would submit to someone insisting I address them as 'Peter Cottontail' because they felt like a rabbit.

I'm sorry that the truth has become so clouded we can't even see something as absolute as biological sex.”

Ashlee Woods

“I believe that banning speech surrounding transgenderism undermines the fundamental principle of free expression, a right protected in democratic societies. Sex-based speech, including discussions around biology and gender, is not harassment but an essential part of public discourse. It plays a critical role in protecting the rights and safety of women, while also informing society on how best to accommodate both trans-identifying individuals and women in tandem.

Censoring such speech prevents open dialogue on important issues that deserve careful consideration. For instance, understanding the implications of social transition and its potential long-term effects on trans-identifying individuals requires a full spectrum of viewpoints to ensure compassionate and informed decisions. By limiting these conversations, Meta risks inadvertently causing harm by suppressing valuable insights that could benefit both communities.

Moreover, Meta’s credibility as a platform for open and diverse conversations may be compromised by taking such an extreme position. A balanced approach that fosters respectful dialogue, rather than one that silences important perspectives, is crucial for both inclusivity and the overall well-being of society.”

Bronson WIGGINS

Requiring everyone in the world to address people by their pronouns is absolutely insane. The only way to address people correctly is by their sex—male or female. Half of the states have filed and received injunctions against the Title IX policies recently issued by President Biden’s administration. Women by sex are being discriminated against as more and more men by sex are identifying as women by their gender pronouns. Stop discrimination against women.

B Miller

“Meta,

It is imperative for the marketplace of ideas to remain open to free speech. When people have the freedom to voice the truth, their opinions, and their experiences, society benefits overall. Removing these videos does not protect people; it would simply be an act of Meta submitting to one narrative while neglecting to consider another. The whole concept of open platforms is to awaken people to the realities of those who think similarly and different. The children who lost to the transgender athlete and those significantly disturbed by the appearance of a male in a women’s restroom have opinions and experiences that should be permitted to be heard and seen. We do not benefit from hiding reality.”

Kathryne Martin

God created us either male or female. We didn’t get to choose. What trans gender people are choosing is to mock God and sin against His laws. God gave us the gift of sex to let humans participate in His creation of new life. A married couple—one male & one female—become one flesh, and in the marital act a new human being is conceived. As humans we are created in His image. We have a soul and free will. May God have mercy on those who turn away from following his laws, and those who condone such behavior.

“Please do not participate in the erasure of free speech nor women’s rights, both of which have been too hard won. To participate in the erasure of women’s rights is bad enough; but to participate in censorship is unthinkable in what heretofore has been the freest nation in the history of the world.

Please. Do neither.”

Edward Piering

Stop regulating free speech and denying science.

Jeanette Burrage

“Please don’t give men who call themselves women special privileges. If people making comments can add videos that help make their point then all people should be able to add videos that support their argument.

This is about free speech, not having everyone adopt the moral code you want them to adopt.”

Lisa Maldonado Bradford

Once again, women are fighting for their rights. This time, the fight goes to the core essence of womanhood... Our gender. Persons who identify as transgender need to establish their own spaces, not infringe or appropriate those of biological women.

Becky Pogacar

I am a PhD prepared nurse who is alarmed at how transgender activists have infiltrated our institutions to the detriment of vulnerable children and women’s rights. As the Cass Review concluded, there is no evidence to support the claims made by WPATH that gender affirming care is safe or effective. Additionally, men who have autogynophilia have taken advantage of the normalization of men in women’s spaces to intrude on female privacy and sports to satisfy their fetish. Women should not be prevented from speaking out against child safeguarding and their right to safety and privacy. The truth is not hateful.

Margaret Eckel

Women have fought for thousands of years to be allowed speech, dress, travel, education, sports, high profile jobs, and much more. We do not need to turn back the clock, genetic women are not men. Do not allow women to be silenced.
